The Vettis™ Bath Collection by Brizo® Brings Innovation to the Forefront of Design

New bath suite blends strong geometry with unique water flow

INDIANAPOLIS – Channeling the unbridled flow of water, the Vettis™ (pronounced VET-tis) Bath Collection by Brizo® evokes a multi-sensory experience grounded in the strength and solid forms found in nature. Deriving its name from Vettisfossen – the tallest, free-falling waterfall in Norway, the angular-modern design provides an unexpected and unique water delivery.

Bringing this collection to the forefront of modern design, the solid, rectangular form of the base coupled with the defined edges and clean lines of the spout produce a steady structure. Balancing this aesthetic, the unique open-flow spout provides a controlled stream of water cascading from all four sides of the chamber, exhibiting an elegant symmetry to an otherwise strong, geometric design.

“The Vettis Collection was born from a deep respect for nature and its strength, combining the solid, rectangular form of the base with an element of surprise in what’s truly a unique water delivery experience,” said TJ Eads, Brizo industrial designer. “The distinctive sound of the water, grounded in the strong beauty of the form, reminds me of the quiet moments in nature, just before dawn, waiting for the world to wake up.”
